Subject RE: FBC Question

Azhar,

The President and CEO of the testing laboratory and the inspection company will both be the same. The inspection company will have engineers validating the test reports and conducting inspections. The employees from the testing laboratory will not be involved with the employees of the inspection company. The books will be ran out of the testing laboratory unless the state requires to have a separate one for the inspection company. If you need anymore details let me know.

Thanks
Jose Sanchez

Subject: FBC Question

Azhar,

I know the state does not certify testing laboratories to validate reports, but lets say I open a Cooperation under a different name will the state than grant me certification under that name even though the owners of both cooperation's are the same? If required we wont validate test reports provided by Fenestration Testing Lab. FTL would like to open an inspection agency that would provide Quality Assurance, Product Validation, and Inspection but we know that their might be a conflict on interest. The personnel from each company will be free from each other.

Sincerely,

Jose Sanchez
